CLAIMS GLAVIS STUNG TRIBUNE

Brother of Louis R. Glavis Mentioned in Lorimer Case.

GOT $750 FROM CHICAGO PAPER

Was to Buy Books of Lobbyist Firm and Prove Thereby that Lorimer Accepted Fee from Chicago Magazine.

Washington, July 26.—James Keeley, general manager and editor of the Chicago Tribune, told the members of the senate committee investigating the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois that the Tribune had been "defrauded" out of $750 by George O. Glavis, a brother of Louis R. Glavis, formerly field agent of the general land office at Seattle, Wash., and one of the principal witnesses in the Ballinger-Pinchot row.

Mr. Keeley, who was cross-examined by Judge E. G. Hanecy, counsel for Senator Lorimer, said that Glavis came to him and told him he thought he could purchase the books of a firm of lobbyists which, Glavis said, would show that Senator Lorimer while a member of the house of representatives received 25 per cent of a $2,000 fee for his services before the postoffice department in obtaining the privilege of the second class postal rates for the Fire Proof Magazine, a Chicago publication. Glavis also told Mr. Keeley, the latter said, that former Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota, also was mixed up in the transaction.

Mr. Keeley said he advanced Glavis $100 to pay the expenses of locating the documents. Later, Mr. Keeley testified, Glavis informed him he had purchased them for the Tribune and the sum of $650 was then paid to Mr. Glavis. But when Mr. Keeley demanded the papers he could not get them and then swore out a warrant for Glavis' arrest for embezzlement. Glavis was arrested in Chicago and brought to Washington for trial.

"What did you want with these books and papers?" asked Judge Hanecy.

"I intended to investigate their accuracy," replied Mr. Keeley. "If they showed evidence of crime I intended to lay them before the district attorney, and if they showed that Senator Lorimer had been involved as Glavis charged, I intended to lay them before this committee, which is investigating Mr. Lorimer's election. Later, at the proper time, I intended to print the story."

"Do you know the name of the firm of lobbyists whose books were to be purchased by Glavis." inquired Judge Hanecy.

"Glavis said it was the firm of Street & Smith in the receipt which he signed when we gave him the money," answered Mr. Keeley. "That is apparently a fictitious name. I think we were gold-bricked, but something has happened since I came to Washington which has made me change my mind about it. Glavis was too smart for me."

Mr. Keeley's story of how the Tribune had been "stung" was amusing to the members of the committee. Judge Hanecy and Senator Lorimer who were listening to the testimony also laughed at several features of the story. Mr. Keeley at times joined in the laughter.

Mr. Keeley did not explain the occurrence which, he said, recently happened in Washington which made him think he had not been gold-bricked.

At the afternoon session Judge Hanecy spent several hours in vigorously cross-examining Mr. Keeley. Considerable time was devoted to the activities of reporters of the Tribune whom Mr. Keeley sent out to investigate the confession of Charles A. White, a Democratic member of the assembly, printed in the Tribune of April 30, 1910, in which White admitted having received money to vote for Lorimer.

"You sent reporters and detectives out to corroborate the White confession, did you not?" asked E. G. Hanecy.

"No," replied Mr. Keeley, "we wished to investigate it, to verify its accuracy or to prove its falsity."

Former Congressman Says the Matter Is All Greek to Him.

Winona, Minn., July 26.—"The matter is all Greek to me," said ex-Congressman Tawney when shown what Keeley had said about him.

"I do not know Mr. Keeley nor Mr. Glavis. I never before heard of the 'Fireproof magazine' and know nothing whatever of any mail privileges it ever sought or obtained."

BEATEN; DIES DAY LATER

Bay City Young Man's Death Will Lead to Inquiry.

Bay City, Mich., July 26.—Fred Kasemeyer, twenty years old, died under circumstances that will undoubtedly cause an inquiry. Kasemeyer was arrested Saturday night after a fight with his wife on a downtown street. It is alleged he was struck by Policeman John Mulholland, who, because of his old age, is an assistant on the patrol wagon.

Mulholland, it is said, used his club when Kasemeyer, who is a strapping fellow nearly six feet tall, became obstreperous. Kasemeyer was released, but after reaching home became ill and died. The cause of death has not yet been determined.

FAME FOR SCOUTS

MUCH PUBLICITY WILL RESULT FROM WEEK IN CAMP SHERZER.

MAGAZINES AND CHICAGO PAPERS SEND FOR STORY AND PICTURES.

Many Interested People Visit Camp—Several Scouts Qualify for High Ranks.

Camp Sherzer, July 26.—F. A. Morgan, a representative of the Chicago Tribune, has come from Chicago to take pictures of Camp Sherzer for his paper. He is accompanied by his son, who is a Boy Scout.

There had been from forty to seventy-five visitors at camp this morning before eleven o'clock. Many were students.

H. L. Hoisington, who is the Scout Master of the Y. M. C. A. Troop of Detroit, came out this morning.

Also from Detroit came J. A. Ward, physical director of the boy's division of the Detroit Y. M. C. A.

Alfred Atherton, of the First Y. M. C. A. Troop, Wolverine Patrol of Detroit, was another camp visitor.

Mrs. George M. Harris and son Newton of Detroit visited camp this morning.

This morning three of the Scouts qualified in signalling as First Class Scouts. They were: Jerome Sherzer, Frank Webb, and Lamar Kishlar. This required them to send and receive a message by wigwagging at the rate of 16 words a minute.

Sherzer and Kishlar went out and cooked a hunters' stew and camp twist to qualify in cooking for First Class Scouts.

Ypsilanti has leaped into sudden fame! Standing on the shoulders of the Boy Scouts she has caught the eye of the world. It is found that the white semicircle of Camp Sherzer has attracted the press and the magazine world, and news of its activities and its central figure of Black Wolf will presently be read by people all over the world.

Dr. W. H. Sherzer, the president of the camp for whom the camp was named, received this morning a telegram from the east, asking that a professional picture of Camp Sherzer be taken and an article descriptive of the camp and reciting its activities be written and sent to Collier's, to Harper's, and to Leslie's magazines.

Not only this, but the Chicago Tribune has sent a photographer from Chicago to Ypsilanti to take a photograph of Camp Sherzer for publication. All the Scouts and Scout Masters and all officers will comprise the group.

BANDIT CAREERS CUT SHORT

Three Grand Rapids Lads Land in Ionia Reformatory.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 26.—Their youthful imaginations inspired by the contents of yellow covered novels, Harold Boumback, eighteen years old, of Greenville; Leavitte Moore, seventeen years old, and Roy Culliver, sixteen years old, of this city, essayed to work together as a bandit gang. As usual, the youthful desperadoes wound up in jail.

In less than twenty-four hours after the trio were arrested they were on their way to Ionia reformatory. They pleaded guilty to a charge of entering a dwelling in the day time and were sentenced to serve from two to five years, with the recommendation of three years, in the reformatory, by Judge McDonald. The boys robbed five houses of nearly $500 before they were apprehended.

EXPECTED FIGHT DOES NOT COME

Taft Men Control Republican Convention in Nebraska.

ADMINISTRATION IS ENDORSED

Resolutions Are Also Passed Endorsing Nebraska Delegation in Congress—Insurgents Favor LaFollette.

Lincoln, Neb., July 26.—What promised to be a big fight between the progressive and regular factions of the Republican party in Nebraska did not develop at the state convention here.

The regulars, or the Taft men, were in control of the convention by more than 2 to 1. Resolutions endorsing the administration of President Taft were adopted without any opposition by the insurgents, who were supposed to be lined up for LaFollette. The latter did not even resist the adoption of the resolutions as they had threatened to do. Resolutions endorsing the Nebraska delegation in congress were also passed. Reciprocity was not mentioned.

Gloom reigned in the camp of the LaFollette men. Frank A. Harrison, who is supposed to be looking after the interests of LaFollette in this state, sent the following telegram to LaFollette:

"Federal brigade in control of convention. Small attendance. Farmers disgusted with reciprocity and will not attend. Tell Norris."

FOR ALL THE SCOUTS

LECTURE PROGRAM CHANGED TO INTRODUCE NEW AND INTERESTING FEATURE.

FRIDAY EVENING WILL BE SET APART FOR SCOUT ENTERTAINMENT.

Arena will be Brightly Lighted for the Occasion—Honor to be Conferred Upon Some Worthy Lad.

There has been an important change in the Seton lecture schedule at the Normal. Friday evening Mr. Seton will conduct an out-of-door demonstration of Boy Scout work, with many new and interesting features. It will be presented in the field at the rear of President Jones' and T. C. Owen's houses, and the arena where the Scouts will perform will be brightly illuminated. There will be room for thousands of spectators. It is suggested that each bring a cushion to sit upon.

On this occasion will be shown the woodcraft Indian activities, combined with those peculiar now to Boy Scouts. Doubtless one feature of the exercises will be the conferring upon an Ypsilanti Scout an honorable nickname, such as was described in Monday afternoon's lecture. Some Scout who has distinguished himself perhaps in camp, or by mastering some accomplishment required, will be selected for this special and much prized honor. Mr. Seton is teaching the Scouts a number of games for Friday evening. The tilting game, suitable for playing on land or water, is among these and is a great favorite in the eastern camps.

Thursday evening the subject of the lecture will therefore be "New Adventures of Old Friends."

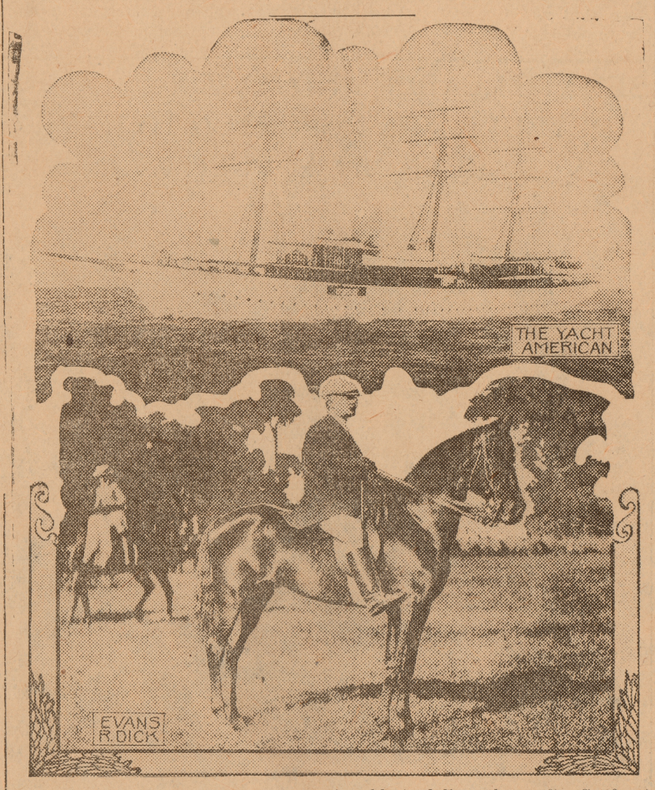
AMERICAN BROKER AND YACHT FACTORS IN HAITIAN REVOLUTION



Cape Haitien, Haiti, July 26.—A New York broker holds the fate of the government of Haiti in his hands. Evans R. Dick, a Wall street operator, is the man. He caused a sensation among the natives here when from his yacht, which is lying in the harbor here, he ordered that the fighting federalists and revolutionists withhold their bombardments lest they injure American citizens in this town and again when he wired Washington for permission (which was refused) to use the guns of the craft if necessary. It has become known that Mr. Dick, dictator of small republic affairs, sold his yacht, which is called the American, to President Simon of Haiti to use as a warship. But when he got down here he found the place in charge of the revolutionists and was unable to deliver the craft. Confronted with this situation, he apparently decided to do the next best thing and at least issue a challenge for a fight on his own behalf. The American is 200 feet long, 33 foot beam and 12 foot draft. She carried two three-pounders, two six-pounders, two one-pounders and several automatic rifles. Just what Mr. Dick is going to do with her is not known. President Simon, facing apparent defeat, is in Port au Prince, making his last stand. To him, no one else, the Wall street man is going to turn over the boat. He bought her from Mrs. Archibald Watt of New York for $58,000 and, it is understood, sold her to President Simon for a much higher figure. It is conceded here that the side that gets the American will be able to win in the fight for control of the island.

TRACES SIGN LANGUAGE BACK TO INDIANS AND MIDDLE AGES

Lecturer Tells of Early Methods of Communication and Pictures its Use to Boy Scouts---Entertains Big House in Evening With Animal Tales

Tuesday afternoon, before Ernest Thompson Seton began his third lecture at Normal Hall, Dr. W. H. Sherzer, President of the Scouts, invited the public to visit Camp Sherzer, which lies conveniently near town.

The subject of the lecture was "The Message of the Indian," and by way of introduction Mr. Seton said, "In my early home the Bible was read every day, sometimes two or three times in a day, and all day long on Sunday, while each of us children had to read the whole book through every year." As a consequence, scenes and phrases from the Bible continually occur to Mr. Seton, and one of the most persistent of these is that all the great seers and prophets who had a message for their people or the world came out of the wilderness. Great thoughts and projects come to man in solitude, and this the history of Washington and Lincoln proves in modern times as well. There is standing before this notion now, said Mr. Seton, a man—a type, rather—who has a message from the wilderness for the American nation, and this man—this type—is the Red Man.

"We never knew until about ten years ago what a red Indian was," said Mr. Seton, "but now that we have taken everything from him that we want, we have time to stop and look and examine him." In 1862, after the Minnesota tragedy, many Indians were condemned to prison. It soon became apparent that they must soon die of consumption. They asked of the government that they be allowed to go home and die. President Lincoln said they should be pardoned and accordingly they were sent home to die. But they did not die. They kept turning up. Curious investigation proved that these sick men had been cured by their own medicine men. On returning to their old homes, the medicine men had told the Indians to give up living in the houses provided by the government and take to their old lodges in the pine woods of Minnesota. The pine tree is in fact the medicine tree of the Indians. Here they breathed the pure air and the good pine smoke. Next they were put in a Turkish bath, which is found in all their villages. It is an apartment which is filled with vapor in most approved fashion by pouring water over hot stones. The patient was then plunged into cold water and rubbed with bear's grease. The efficacy of bear's grease might be questioned, but in its application the Indian was necessarily vigorously massaged. Then they sang to him, a part of the treatment of the utmost significance and importance. It was the medicine song and it satisfied him that something great was being done for him; it worked on his faith and made him strong within and, being strong within, it was not long before the man was strong without.

Mr. Seton admitted that along with all this there was a certain amount of humbug, that there is nothing enduring but the Christian philosophy, but these medicical practices once laughed at have been seriously adopted now by the white man.

Fifteen years ago it was found that the Indian has a music of his own. On this musicians are placing a higher and yet higher value all of the time. To be sure no opera founded on Indian music has yet been a success for people are not yet able to appreciate this type, which is essentially the music of the out of doors and of camp life. Yet when Mr. Seton gave by request a presentation of pure Indian music on a certain occasion, the effect was magical. He was asked to repeat it and, after a certain number of presentations had failed to satisfy the demand, he was forced to abandon the performance, as he could not really devote his time to this purpose. At least 5,000 of the old Indian airs and songs have been captured by the aid of reproducing machines or by taking down the melodies as sung by the older Indians.

The Indians have brought other messages to the white man. The Navajo blankets are truly beautiful and in the art of basketry Indians have never been surpassed. Some of their baskets are worth thousands of dollars. Everywhere their canoes are found. Their birch bark canoes, in the method of placing the ribs and in their method of propulsion, have remained the model for the world.

The Indian lodge is vastly superior to the white man's tent. It is always well ventilated, a fire may be built within, and the faint stream of smoke always issuing from the top keeps away mosquitoes. The Indian bed is a masterpiece. Willow rods are woven into a lattice and laid on two polls, which raises it sufficiently from the ground. It may be rolled up and carried easily about.

Mr. Seton placed a special emphasis on the fact that the Indian has invented and perfected the sign language. Mr. Seton once asked a shy little girl if she knew the sign language. This the shy little girl vigorously disclaimed by shaking her head. Answering another question affirmatively, she had nodded her head, proving she was a past mistress of very easily intelligible sign language. When the policeman raises an authoritative hand and the line of vehicles promptly pauses, when the irate first is shaken before an offender,—is not a universal sign language being employed? Mr. Seton traced the crossing of the fingers back to the Middle Ages when the pursued would flee to the cathedral or the

THE RECIPROCITY OF IDEAS AND IDEALS.

We presume many of our readers who are attempting the review with us of Mr. Kauffman's book entitled, "What is Socialism?" are finding it a little dry for summer reading. But we bespeak for it serious attention, because we believe it worth while to endeavor, without waiting longer, to understand what Socialism is, if we can. The Socialists think they understand what it is, and they are so imbued with the spirit that it is the best possible system of government that they are making every possible sacrifice for its advancement, and the success with which they are being rewarded is the talk of most close political economists.

Albert Jay Nock, until recently a professor in the University of Michigan, has been writing in the American Magazine a very interesting series of articles, contrasting the tax system and land policies of some of our states and the United States with Canada and some of her provinces. Mr. Nock has been traveling extensively in Canada, something over 6,000 miles between coast and coast, and during that time he said he talked with over two hundred and forty prosperous, transplanted Americans—city people mostly,, "many of them coming from cities that I knew well,—Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo. They represented all trades and professions. All were in early middle age, having left the United States at a time when sentimental attachments are usually well rooted. Not one of them as much as asked me one question about his old home."

Quoting Edmund Burke, Mr. Nock says, "For us to love our country, our country ought to be lovely." The only reason he finds, or the chief reason he finds, for Americans never even asking about their own country after they had gone to Canada, is that her system of taxation and of public land policy and her social interest in the immigrants make these transplanted Americans so interested in their new home that they have thus quickly forgotten about their old home. At least their new interests have so monopolized their attention as to practically wipe from memory's film the old interest in the old home. He concedes, and Canadians concede, that a reciprocity of ideas and ideals is beneficial to both.

Judge Sutherland at Detroit a couple of days ago admitted that much of the best that Canada has she has taken from American ideals, but modified by striking out what they had regarded, and what we had conceded, were our own mistakes. Judge Sutherland furthermore denied with all possible emphasis that Canada would ever consent to annexation, that she has ambitions to be a nation herself and the worthiest kind of ambition.

We as Americans then ought to study what it is about Canada that is drawing our own citizens over there and making them contented to remain. It is not the citizens alone of the east,—of the abandoned farms, so called, of New England,—that are going into this new country, but, as Mr. Nock points out, it is thousands of the best citizens of our best cities.

And not alone this —the following are official figures—said to be—of the number of immigrants which have gone into British Columbia from the states of Washington and Oregon, two of our newest developed states. The numbers follow by years, for comparison: 1907, 3,829; 1908, 7,517; 1909, 9,366; 1910, 17,734. The doubling of immigration and figures of that size, combined with other facts, is certainly interesting. Washington and Oregon together have in four years, since 1906, sped 43,979 citizens into the larger liberty of the Dominion of Canada. And in the nature of things there is no obvious reason for it. "Washington and Oregon, with fairest of prospects, richest and loveliest of empires, holding every natural opportunity for all sorts and conditions of men—why should anyone, once having seen them, ever leave them? Only because they are blighted by monopoly, cursed by a feadalistic land policy, a most miserable tax system and a spirit of speculation that strings them both."

The perusal of the articles by Mr. Nock, contrasting the situation across the border-line in Canada and in the northwestern part of the United States, showing how the tax and land systems of the two countries are working out in actual life, compels us in self-defence to give serious attention to the lessons which are suggested here and begin to apply, as Canada has applied, the good things we find elsewhere for our own advancement. The kindliest of reciprocity ideas and ideals should be a profitable policy for us to pursue, not alone with Canada, but with other countries as well.

When large numbers of well-to-do women in the east will abstain from the delicacies of the table and the luxuries of living for a week, in order that the proceeds may be sent to California to aid the fight for woman's suffrage now on there, success appears above the horizon.

AMONG THE MAGAZINES

Certain saloonkeepers very strenuously advocate a rigid refusal to sell intoxicating liquors to drunkards. It would be vastly better for society if the saloonkeepers would continue to sell the stuff to the drunkards and refuse to sell to those who are just beginning to drink.—The American Issue.

TRACES SIGN LANGUAGE

king's palace, which were recognized as sacred precincts, and there make this sign for his pursuers to respect. The sign language of the deaf is understood by the Indians. The nurses at the hospitals are taught a sign language, that they may inaudibly speak to other attendants without being heard by patients. It is employed in the showing of moving pictures. Soldiers may communicate with one another by its beans further than their voices could reach and at a faster rate of speed than the general forms of signaling admit. Mr. Seton uses it often with his operator in showing pictures and once by means of the sign language his operator told him there was a fire on the floor below, and he in turn gave directions which saved the situation entirely.

Scouts from Italy, from Russia, from anywhere, will be able to communicate with Scouts from America. It will be a universal language. The Indians have made this language picturesque and significant. To illustrate both these qualities, Mr. Seton gave the spelled-out sign which the deaf use for the month of January, and then that of the Indians, which is the raising of two fingers to show the horns of the moon and a slow downward movement of the hand to suggest the falling of snow.

Mr. Seton is deeply appreciative of the beauty of the Indian religion. The well-meaning but ill-advised efforts of certain missionaries in imposing upon the Indians customs at variance with their instincts and practises Mr. Seton illustrated by recounting an instance of a wedding, where the missionary insisted that the Indian groom should be shorn of his hair. It unloosed a torrent of stormy indignation on the part of the medicine man and only the counsel of one of the older men averted an uprising. In his impassioned speech, the medicine man had reminded his people that the white man had filled them with a love for money and then told them of its evils, had filled them with a fear of death and a taste for whiskey.

The treatment of the Indians by the government Mr. Seton illustrated by a true tale of the Cheyennes. They were shut up in a cave in Arizona for three days, besieged by soldiers. They sang the death song, then went bravely out and were shot down. Four bodies of soldiers pursued those that escaped. After nameless horrors and a hunger relieved only by eating a horse they had shot, the Indians were at last shot down by Gatling guns while lying in a trench, their fingers frozen off and almost without clothing. Once again they had sung their death song, which is this:

"Father, we are going out to die. Let not fear enter our hearts. For ourselves we grieve no, but for those we leave behind. Father, we are going out to die."

BIG AUDIENCE FOR EVENING LECTURE

Tuesday evening, before an audience which filled Normal Hall completely and overflowed onto the stage, Ernest Thompson Seton gave a talk, illustrated with stereopticon slides, on "The Personality of Wild Animals."

"No two animals are alike," Mr. Seton said. A dog man stoutly avers that no two dogs are alike, a horseman that no two horses are alike. But the horsemen may contend that dogs have no personality of their own, and may be skeptical when a bear hunter claims that no two bears are alike.

Mr. Seton once for five years lived in the northwest in the prairie country and experienced such pleasure in gaining an insight into wild life there that he has always called these his golden days. For miles, for hours, he has tracked a single fox. He perhaps never saw the animal, but the script he left on the snow made a full and legible account of his adventures Here the fox had killed a snake, there he had smelled around for the prairie chickens which dive into snowbanks for protection from the cold, and there again he had found his quarry and taken it home to his little hungry family.

The setting aside of reservations, such as the Yellowstone Park, has resulted in the wild animals' quickly recognizing the safety of this zone and moving in They have greatly increased in numbers and some of the animals who formerly came out merely at night now come freely out in the day. The effect on man has been that those who have formerly thought sport was possible only with a gun have discovered that the observing of wild animals living a natural, fearless life may provide an equal pleasure.

Mr. Seton spent a year in the Yellowstone and his pictures of bears were rich in humor and conveyed clear ideas of their life and adventures. Mr. Seton finished the evening with an account of Lobo, the famous wolf who killed cattle regardless of guns and poisons and whom no native of the region where he roamed could cope with. The recital of his cunning in detecting poison, his superb disregard of traps, and his final undoing through grief over the death of his mate was supremely interesting and told inimitably by Mr. Seton.

A Few Things About The Farm Good To Know

SHRINKING STAVES A BAD FEATURE IN SILOS—FRUIT AND GARDEN NOTES.

In the construction of a silo it is well for those planning to install them to keep in mind two or three weak points to be found with the wooden or stave structure. One of these and perhaps the worst is the shrinking of the staves in dry weather and the swelling in wet, necessitating an adjustment of the metal hoops to correspond; another is the likelihood of the structure being overturned in windstorms, while a third drawback is that the wooden structure cannot be made airtight so easily as those of brick and hollow blocks and is not so warm.

Morning glories can be given an effective backset by plowing the soil infested by them to a depth of about six inches not later than Aug. 1. Of course land that is raising a tilled crop could not be handled in this way, but in small grain stubble this plan would be very effective. It would mean that the shocks of grain would have to be thrashed at once or put in the stack. Plowing the morning glories at this time hits them when a maximum of the plant's energy has been sent into the vine and proves so great a shock that the few plants that survive can be muckled with a tilled crop the following season.

Again this season, as was the case last, many a small fruit grower in the drouth afflicted states could have saved or greatly increased his output of fruit had he been equipped with an irrigating plant of some kind with which to supply moisture to his growing vines and bushes when the clouds failed to yield their usual refreshment. It will cost money to install such a plant as the one referred to, but if one is engaging in the fruit raising business on an extensive scale it should be viewed in the light of necessary insurance, the benefit of which will represent a handsome interest return on the money required to install it.

Sue for Divorce or Go to Works.

Saginaw, Mich., July 26.—Arthur Birdsall was sentenced to ninety days in the Detroit house of correction for non-support. Justice McDonald released him when he asked for a chance to secure funds to sue for a divorce. The judge allowed Birdsall until Saturday to make good.

Felix Geniac Dead at Monroe.

Monroe, Mich., July 26.—Felix Geniac, eighty years old, for twenty-eight years court house janitor, becoming assistant two years ago on account of infirmities, is dead. He leaves a widow and three sons.

Girls Will Learn How to Shoot.

So that they may learn how to use firearms, girl members of the Broad Street Park Methodist Episcopal church of Trenton, N. J., have organized the Girl Rangers' club. The Rev. William Stone, the pastor, expects that all will develop into crack shots. He is to train them in artillery and also to give them instructions in general athletics.

TYPHOID CLAIMS PASTOR

Rev. T. W. Monteith Dies After Three Weeks' Illness.

Port Huron, Mich., July 20. — Following a three weeks' illness with typhoid fever, Rev. Thomas Wilson Monteith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, died at his home in this city. He preached in Port Huron longer than any other minister in this city, having held two pastorates here, one of thirteen years and the other of twelve and a half years.

He preached in Port Huron for the first time in 1872, shortly after graduating from Newburg Theological seminary, which he had attended after pursuing his literary studies at Kalamazoo college, the University of Michigan and Monmouth college. After preaching for a brief period in Ohio and New York, he came to Port Huron and preached alternately here and in South Field, Mich., during 1872 and 1873, and was installed as pastor of the United Presbyterian church in this city in the latter year, retaining the pastorate until 1886 when he resigned. He will be buried at Martin, Allegan county.

WHITE SLAVE PROMOTERS ARRESTED--WOMAN WANTED

San Antonio, Texas July 26.—The persistent war that has been made on the white slave traffic in Chicago and a number of other cities has resulted in driving some of those engaged in the business to other fields. Recently, two of these, one from Baltimore and the other from Chicago, started to ply their nefarious vocations in this city. The police department, however, stopped their effort in its incipiency and the two men were lodged in jail. The woman, however, who was an accomplice in the effort has so far evaded arrest. It was discovered after the arrest of the men that one of them was wanted in Baltimore for an offense like the one for which he was arrested here. Baltimore authorities are negotiating to take him to that city. The Chicago man will be tried here, and if public opinion is a criterion by which one can judge what will happen to him, it will be some years before he will attempt to engage in white slave traffic again.

WILD WEST COMING

Writers of popular fiction in search of names for their heroes would find the payroll of the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will make its initial bid for local favor Thursday afternoon and night, Aug. 10th, a veritable gold mine of suggestions.

The poetic name of one new cow puncher is "Bottle Nose Ben," another answers to the cognomen of "Zinct Tooth Bill." Owen Wistler might make use of "Bad Lands Charley" for one of his characters, while "Alkali Pete" would look very well displayed in red on the front page of the wild and woolly literature so dear to the heart of the young American.

The cowboy is not alone in his penchant for absurd and outlandish names. The noble red man furnishes an assortment that any first-class distiller would revel in. "Snake Bite" "Laughing Water," "Hot Foot," "Big Deer," and "Stiff Knee" are but samples of what a distorted imagination can produce. There are a score or more names on this same payroll that are producers, that attract dollars to the show. Prominent among them is Annie Oakley, the world famous woman rifle shot. Miss Oakley has appeared in all cities of the civilized world; has appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe and is the possessor of many valuable gifts from the royal family in recognition of her wonderful skill with the rifle. Capt. Bogardus, the undefeated rifle shot of the world, is another name that possesses drawing power. Ambrose Means, the reckless American cowboy who invaded the interior of the East African veldt and succeeded in capturing alive rhinoceri and other wild animals with a lariat, is a big drawing card. There are many other celebrities with the Young Buffalo Wild West shows, but lack of space forbids their enumeration. A big street parade will be given at 10:00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the entire aggregation will be seen decked out in their finest feathers and finery.

NO MORE SMOKING IN PUBLIC

Dr. Wiley Says It Will Soon Be as Extinct as the Dodo.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the government pure food and drug expert, is now after the smokers.

"I predict that within twelve years smoking and tobacco chewing in public will have become obsolete," said Dr. Wiley. "A man has a perfect right to drink, chew or dip snuff in his private sanctorium, but he has not the shadow of a right to inflict unwholesome smoke on the community at large.

"There should be a strictly enforced law prohibiting smoking and chewing in public places or on the cars where other persons are obliged to be.

"College students, a brand of animal that is not noted for daintiness or regard for the feelings of others, will crawl under a grand stand to take a pull from the bottle that curses. Even these fellows will not drink openly so that their fellow citizens can watch them, and the same thing will come to pass as regards tobacco within the next few years."

Russia Land of Tragedies.

"Russia is the land of tragedies. The harvest is gathered daily and the victims belong to all classes. The people have become accustomed to scenes and descriptions of horror," according to the Russische Correspondenz, "and it requires a case like that of the artist Constantin Kryschitzki to attract attention. He placed on view a painting which he had recently completed, and was forthwith accused of having copied it from the work of another painter. He failed to convince his accusers of his honesty and the genuineness of his picture, and in desperation killed himself. On the same night and before the news of the tragedy had reached them the artists of St. Petersburg held a meeting at which it was reported that Kryschitzki had been wrongfully accused. Too late!"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LARNED MAY GO TO AUSTRALIA

National Tennis Champion Likely to Lead Team For Davis Cup.

TO BID STRONG FOR TROPHY.

American to Select Best That Could Possibly Be Sent to the Antipodes In Hope of Winning Back Cup—To Play Challenge Tie at Christchurch.

Although it may seem a trifle premature to talk about America's plans for the Dwight Davis lawn tennis cup, there is no denying the fact that the outlook for this trophy has become the topic of a vast amount of thought among the powers that be in the sport.

Since the announcement was made some weeks ago that South Africa had decided not to try for the trophy this year, leaving just America and England in the field to play for the right to challenge Australia, every lawn tennis follower on this side of the Atlantic has speculated to some degree on what steps would be taken to go after the cup.

The more recent announcement made that Christchurch, New Zealand, had been selected as the place where the challenge tie shall be played has attracted further attention to the international matches, and, although there probably will not be any play until the fall, interest is growing steadily.

Last year the United States failed to send a team to try for the Davis trophy, but indications are that the 1911 season will not go by without this country making a bid. Dr. James Dwight, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, and Robert W. Wrenn, also a leading officer of the organization, both of whom are committeemen on the international event, are keen on America's chances for lifting the cup. There will be no repetition of last year's failure to send over a representative combination if they can help it.

The committee is hopeful of getting together the strongest team possible for the event. The body will not, of course, make known at this early date the names of any team possibilities, but confidence is expressed that the combination selected will be a representative one.

William A. Larned is being banked on by both Dwight and Wrenn, it has been said, to bring back the coveted trophy. With him there are several other possible strong candidates. The old standbys of the east and several of the newer crack California stars will be the most likely eligibles.

Ten years of tennis battling has figured in the contest for possession of the famous Davis cup. The history of the struggle shows that three countries have striven and won the title emblematic of international supremacy on the courts.

Australia, with its invincible Brookes and Wilding, has held possession of the trophy since 1907. Competition for the prize was first started in 1900, and the United States for two years successfully withstood the British invasion. The stars of Great Britain came back again the following year and lifted the cup. They held it until 1907, when the Australian team of Brookes and Wilding won and have held the trophy ever since.

It is hard to say what the complexion of the English team will be this year, but America with its hopeful candidates is figured to be able to defeat the Britishers for the right to challenge the Australian team. Many are of the opinion that with a good selection from the old guard and a first rate nomination from the younger element of racket wielders even Australia, with its great pair, will be unable to withstand the 1911 American invasion.

M'FARLAND CAN MAKE 133 LBS.

Can Do It Easily and Beat 'Em All, Says Sammy Kelly.

Skeptics who refuse to be convinced persist in declaring that McFarland is a welterweight and cannot make 133 pounds at any time. Sam Kelly, who managed Jack Goodman when the latter was stopped by Packy at 135, scaling at 3 o'clock, said the other day:

"McFarland can do 133 easily and whip any man in the world. He actually weighed 133¼ pounds when he scaled at 3 o'clock for Goodman, and yet he was as strong as a bull and never showed better skill. Packy is a foxy chap who has fooled a lot of people with his plea that he can't do 133 and be strong, but if Wolgast makes a match with him at 133 six hours before ring time go out and bet all you can that there'll be a new world's champion. Why? Because Wolgast couldn't put a glove on Packy in twenty or twenty-five rounds, while Packy would simply cut Ad to pieces and blind him.

"These lightweights who are talking so much steer clear of McFarland, you'll notice, and that's because they know he is the best man of his weight in the world. I don't believe Wolgast will ever fight him, but he'll tackle K. O. Brown and break Morgan. Wolgast didn't try when he boxed Brown last winter. He just picked up $11,000 boxing a mug."

MORGAN CAUSES LAUGHTER

Smash on Jaw Makes Him Afraid of High Ones.

Considerable merriment is always afforded to fan and fanette whenever "Cyrano" Morgan, the Philadelphia Americans' veteran pitcher, steps toward the plate to make his bow as a batter. Cy usually bats with one foot at the water bucket and the other out of the grounds, and some of his swings look as funny as a giraffe trying to play croquet.

But there is a reason for that. Cyrus was playing for St. Paul one day when a wild busher on one of the other clubs tore loose a fast one that smashed Cyrus in the jaw, broke up all his dental work and had him expectorating teeth for ten minutes.

In addition, he got a gash in his map that required several stitches as well as marring the contour of his classic features. Since that day Cyrano has always been in mortal fear of right handers, though he says that he can hit southpaws as well as any league leader.

HIGH BALL NOT EFFECTIVE.

Ty Cobb Says Pitchers Who Use Low Curve Get Best Results.

Ty Cobb is of the opinion that with the new ball now in vogue no pitcher who uses a high ball can be effective. He says that the lively ball when pitched high can be hit just hard enough to make long flies, and while these would ordinarily have been putouts, they are now long hits, because the ball is more lively. "It has been my observation," he argues, "that the pitchers who are keeping the ball low are those who are getting best results. The ball has much to do with this, and, furthermore, there are more high ball hitters now than there used to be. The batters have mastered the high ball, but most of them are weak on the low ones."

The Hemp Kings of Yucatan.

The fifty kings live in costly palaces in Merida and many of them have homes abroad. They travel a great deal, usually they speak several different languages and they and their families are a most cultivated class of people. All Merida and all Yucatan, even all the peninsula of Yucatan, are dependent on the fifty Henequen kings. Naturally these men are in control of the political machinery of their state, and naturally they operate that machinery for their own benefit. The slaves are 8,000 Yaqui Indians imported from Sonora, 3,000 Chinese (Koreans) and between 100,000 and 125,000 native Mayas, who formerly owned the lands that the Henequen kings now own.—From Turner's "Barbarous Mexico."

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.
